1. Purpose

The Credit Card Accountability, Responsibility and Disclosure Act (“CARD Act”) requires the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (“CFPB”) to submit to the Congress, and to make available to the public, an annual report that lists information submitted to the Bureau concerning agreements between credit card issuers and institutions of higher education (“institutions”) or certain affiliated organizations (“college credit card agreements” or “agreements”).^a Affiliated organizations include fraternities, sororities, alumni associations, or foundations affiliated with or related to an institution of higher education. As this report demonstrates, the majority of college credit card agreements are between issuers and affiliated organizations.

This is the fourth annual report pursuant to this provision of the CARD Act. The first two reports were submitted by the Federal Reserve Board. Pursuant to Title X of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010, responsibility for collecting and submitting to the Congress annual reports regarding college credit card agreements transferred from the Federal Reserve Board to the CFPB on July 21, 2011.

^a The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (the “CFPB”) submits this report in accordance with Section 305 of the Credit Card Accountability Responsibility and Disclosure Act of 2009 (the “CARD Act”), Pub. L. No. 111–24, § 305(a), 123 Stat. 1734, 1749–50 (2009).

2. Introduction

Title III of the CARD Act contains a number of provisions designed to provide protections to younger consumers. For example, the Act restricts the marketing of credit cards to college students on or near college campuses or at school-sponsored events by prohibiting the use of gifts or any tangible items to induce students to apply for credit cards.^b In addition, the Act prohibits the marketing of preapproved offers to a consumer under the age of 21 without the consumer's consent.^c The Act also prohibits credit card issuers from extending credit to persons under age 21 without a written application demonstrating the consumer's independent ability to make payments or a cosigner age of 21 or over with the means to make payments.^d The Bureau's recent report on the CARD Act addresses the effectiveness of these provisions in protecting younger consumers.^e

Section 305 of the CARD Act was intended to bring greater transparency to the college and university credit card market. Specifically, credit card issuers are required^f to submit to the CFPB each year the terms and conditions of any college credit card agreement that was in effect at any time during the preceding calendar year between the issuer and an institution of higher education, an alumni organization, or a foundation affiliated with an institution of higher education (an “affiliated organization”).^g Issuers also are required to submit the following information with respect to each agreement: (1) the number of credit card accounts covered by the agreement (“college credit card accounts”) that were open at year-end (regardless of when the account was opened); (2) the amount of payments made by the issuer to the institution or organization during the year;^h (3) the number of new college credit card accounts covered by the agreement that were opened during the year; and 4) any Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between the issuer and institution or affiliated organization that directly or indirectly relates to any aspect of the agreement.

Issuers were required to make their fourth annual submission by April 1, 2013. This submission comprised college credit card agreements to which the issuer was a party during 2012 and information regarding payments and accounts as of December 31, 2012.

As part of its effort to achieve greater transparency, Congress directed the Bureau to issue a report each year on the information and documents provided by card issuers, including the number of new accounts opened pursuant to agreements between card issuers and colleges and universities and the compensation paid by issuers to these institutions. This report is based on the information and agreements submitted to the CFPB by credit card issuers. The report finds a continuing decrease in the number of colleges and universities sponsoring credit card programs, the number of new accounts being originated under such programs, and the compensation paid to the institutions pursuant to these programs.

Because some agreements address the provision of other financial products (such as deposit accounts) as well as credit cards, payments made by issuers under these agreements may not

^g In some cases, issuers submitted to the Bureau agreements with other types of organizations, such as fraternities, sororities, and professional or trade organizations that relate to the issuance of credit cards to college students. Such agreements are included in this report and categorized as agreements with “other organizations.”

^h All payments included in this report are rounded to the nearest dollar.

relate solely to credit card accounts. In addition, some or all of the accounts opened pursuant to these agreements may have been opened by individuals who are not students (such as alumni, faculty, and staff of an institution of higher education). Furthermore, card issuers' submissions do not include information regarding credit card accounts opened by students independent of a college credit card agreement (such as when a student responds to an offer made to the general public). The CFPB also notes that, because issuers were required to submit all college credit card agreements to which they were a party at any time during 2012, issuers' submissions may include agreements that terminated in 2012 or 2013 and therefore are no longer in effect.

Information included in this report also is available on the Bureau's public website at www.consumerfinance.gov. In addition, under section 304 of the Credit CARD Actⁱ and its implementing regulations, 12 C.F.R. § 1026.57(b), an institution of higher education must publicly disclose college credit card agreements between a card issuer and the institution.

ⁱ 15 U.S.C. § 1650(f)(1) (2012).

3. Overview of college card agreements

As presented in Table 1, the CFPB received 617 college credit card agreements from 23 credit card issuers for 2012. Between 2011 and 2012, the number of agreements, total of college credit card accounts open at year-end, and payments by issuers during the year all declined. The number of new college credit accounts opened during the year rose slightly in 2012 after falling in 2010 and 2011. Only the number of issuers increased from 2009 to 2012; all other measures declined over this period.

3.1 Credit card issuers

Twenty-three issuers submitted agreements for 2012, an increase of one issuer from 2011. Two new issuers submitted agreements in 2012, while one issuer consolidated its reporting.

3.1.1 New issuers

Both of the new issuers in the 2012 submission were credit unions, each of which submitted agreements with affiliates of a local university – Wright-Patt Credit Union with the Wright State University Alumni Association and Oregon Community Credit Union with the Alumni Association of the University of Oregon and the Oregon State University Alumni Association.

MIT Credit Union is also included in this report for the first time. Its agreement with the MIT Alumni Association was active in 2011, but it did not submit the information to the Bureau. The MIT Alumni Association and the Wright State University Alumni Association each previously had agreements with FIA Card Services, N.A. (“FIA”), a subsidiary of Bank of America Corporation. These agreements were terminated in 2011 and 2012, respectively. The Alumni Association of the University of Oregon and the Oregon State University Alumni Association both additionally have agreements with Chase Bank USA, N.A. (“Chase”) that remain active as of January 1, 2013.

3.1.2 Issuers consolidating reporting

Capital One Bank USA, N.A. (“Capital One Bank”) is an affiliate of Capital One, N.A. (“Capital One”). Both issuers submitted an agreement with the Keystone College Alumni Association in 2011. In 2012 the banks submitted combined information.

3.1.3 Issuers submitting the largest number of agreements

As in 2009 through 2011, FIA submitted the most agreements. FIA submitted 412 agreements, which was nearly 67% of all agreements submitted in 2012. Capital One and US Bank, N.A. (“US Bank”) submitted the second and third most, respectively, with 55 and 48 agreements. US Bank, which had the second highest number of agreements for the previous two years, moved to third in 2012.

3.2 College card agreements

As presented in Table 3, issuers submitted 617 college card agreements for 2012, a decrease of 179 agreements—approximately 23%—relative to 2011.

3.2.1 New agreements in 2012

While the total number of college card agreements declined from 2011 to 2012, issuers added 50 new agreements in 2012. Capital One entered into 24 new agreements in 2012, its second year of rapid growth. UMB Bank, N.A. also experienced strong growth with 17 new agreements in 2012. The remaining 9 new agreements were distributed roughly evenly across six issuing institutions.

3.2.2 Agreements terminated in 2011

As Table 3 also shows, 228, or approximately 29 percent, of the 796 college card agreements in effect during 2011 were terminated at or before year-end 2011, though some educational institutions re-opened agreements with different issuers. A complete list of terminated agreements is included in Appendix B of this report. The issuer with the largest number of agreements terminated was FIA, with 221, or approximately 35 percent of FIA's total agreements in 2011, terminated. FIA's total accounted for 97% of all agreements terminated in 2011.

Most of the agreements terminated in 2011 were associated with college credit card programs with 5,000 or fewer open accounts. Five agreements with over 5,000 active accounts were terminated in 2011: (1) Duke Alumni Association, Inc.; (2) Arizona State University Alumni Association; (3) California State University Long Beach Alumni Association; (4) National Dean's List Graduate; and (5) University of Utah Alumni Association. Duke Alumni Association's agreement was with Chase, while the remaining four agreements were with FIA.

3.2.3 Terminated in 2012

As shown in Table 4, 202 of the agreements in effect during 2012 were terminated before January 1, 2013.ⁱ The issuers with the largest number of terminated agreements in 2012 were FIA, with 188 or approximately 45% of its agreements, and US Bank, with 8 or approximately 17% of its agreements. Though some terminations may have resulted in new agreements with different issuers, we expect the total number of agreements in effect in 2013 to continue to decline provided that the number of terminated agreements continues to strongly outpace the number of new agreements being created. Three banks – Compass Bank, Barclays, and PNC Bank – terminated all their existing agreements in 2012.

ⁱ Other tables throughout this report reflect the number of agreements that were terminated in 2011, and thus were not in effect at any point in 2012. Table 4 reflects the number of agreements that were in effect at some point in 2012 but were terminated prior to the end of the year. These agreements will thus not be in effect at any point in 2013.

3.3 Institutions of higher education, affiliated organizations, and other organizations

As presented in Table 5, approximately 43 percent of college card agreements in effect in 2012 were between an issuer and an alumni association affiliated with an institution of higher education. An additional 28 percent were between a credit card issuer and an institution of higher education. Approximately 19 percent were between a credit card issuer and other organization affiliated with an institution of higher education, just over 8 percent of agreements in effect were between issuers and foundations, and less than 1 percent of agreements were between an issuer and multiple organizations.^k ^k For example, an agreement to which both a university and that university's affiliated alumni association were parties.

Total	617	1,222,718	$50,396,103	45,519

The composition of reported affinity agreements has changed significantly since the 2010 year's report, in which alumni associations constituted 36 percent of affinity agreements and institutions of higher education constituted 37 percent. The growth in alumni associations' share of affinity agreements at the expense of the share institutions of higher education is a continuation of the trend presented in figure 1. Alumni associations have consistently comprised a larger portion of affinity agreements in each year for which data is available, passing institutions of higher education as the largest group of college affinity card agreements in 2011 and continuing to grow in 2012. Universities and other institutions of higher education have correspondingly comprised a smaller portion of affinity agreements in each year.

3.4 Open college credit card accounts

As presented in Table 6, the total number of open college credit card accounts at year-end declined from 2009 to 2012 by approximately 40 percent. While some issuers had increased numbers of open accounts at year-end 2012, these increases were offset by larger declines experienced by other issuers.

3.4.1 Largest numbers of open accounts at year-end

Table 7 presents the 10 college card agreements with the largest number of open accounts as of December 31, 2012. These 10 agreements represent approximately 24 percent of all open college credit card accounts as of December 31, 2012.

The 7 agreements with the largest number of open accounts at year end 2012 (all issued by FIA) were also the top 7 in 2011. FIA's agreement with the University of Georgia Foundation moved from having the eighth most open accounts in 2011 to the eleventh most open accounts as of year-end 2012. Purdue Federal Credit Union's agreement with the Purdue Alumni Association moved from having the thirteenth most open accounts in 2011 to the eighth most open accounts as of year-end 2012. As a result, FIA is no longer the only issuer with agreements among the top 10 largest number of open accounts as of year-end 2012.

3.4.3 Largest payments by credit card issuers

Table 9 presents the 10 college credit card agreements with the largest payments made by the credit card issuer in 2012. These 10 agreements represent approximately 29 percent of all payments made by issuers pursuant to college card agreements in 2012.

As table 9 shows, all ten of these agreements also were among the eleven agreements with the largest payments in 2011. The University of Arizona Alumni Association, which had the sixth highest issuer payments in 2011 with $1,323,944 paid by FIA, declined to 108th with $70,428 in payments in 2012.

3.4.4 New college credit card accounts

As presented in Table 10, the total number of new college credit card accounts opened by all issuers declined by approximately 18 percent from 2009. Roughly equal numbers of issuers increased and decreased their new account volume. Even so, larger gains at issuers opening new accounts offset declining new accounts elsewhere leading the overall number of new accounts to rise by 2,292 to 45,519 in 2012 from 2011.

3.4.5 Largest number of new accounts opened

Table 11 presents the 10 college card agreements with the largest number of new college card accounts opened in 2012. These 10 agreements represent approximately 39 percent of all new college credit card accounts opened during 2012.

As table 11 shows, four of the ten agreements listed were also among the ten agreements with most new accounts in 2011. Of the six agreements in the top ten for 2011 but not for 2012, only one (FIA's agreement with the University of Notre Dame with the eleventh most new accounts) remained in the top twenty for 2012. The rest – Auburn Spirit Foundation, Georgia Tech Alumni Association, Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society, and the Association of Graduates of the United States Air Force Academy – fell to 27th, 37th, 84th, and 34th, respectively. Barclays Bank Delaware's agreement with the Harvard Alumni Association, which ranked second in new account generation in 2011, was terminated in 2012.

Of the six agreements among the top ten for 2012 but not for 2011, four –University of Southern California, UCLA Alumni Association, Penn State Alumni Association, and the California Alumni Association – were among the top twenty in 2011. The Brown Alumni Association agreement with FIA ranked 121st in new accounts in 2011, and the Alumni Association of the University of Oregon's agreement with Oregon Community Credit Union is new in 2012.

3.4.6 Consolidation of college affinity card agreements

From 2009 to 2012, the top ten affinity agreements by account size have grown from 18 percent of all college affinity card accounts to 24 percent. The top ten affinity agreements by payment quantity have similarly grown from 22 percent to 29 percent, and the top ten affinity agreements by new account volume have grown from 16 percent to 40 percent of all new accounts. This growth reflects increasing concentration in a number of large agreements as large issuers shed smaller agreements.

4. Detailed information about college credit card agreements

Pursuant to Section 305 of the Credit CARD Act, Appendix A to this report lists the information submitted to the CFPB regarding the payments made and accounts opened under college credit card agreements. The complete text of each agreement submitted to the CFPB is available on the Bureau's public website at www.consumerfinance.gov.

Appendix A lists the following information about each college credit card agreement: (1) the name of the institution or organization; (2) the type of institution or organization;^m (3) the city and state where the institution or organization is located; (4) the name of the issuer; (5) whether the agreement has been amended or is new;ⁿ (6) whether the agreement was still in

^m This report presents information regarding four categories of institutions or organizations. “University” refers to an institution of higher education, as defined in sections 101 and 102 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. § 1001 and 1002). “Alumni association” refers to an alumni organization affiliated with an institution of higher education. “Foundation” refers to a foundation affiliated with an institution of higher education. In some cases, issuers submitted to the CFPB agreements with other types of organizations, such as fraternities, sororities, and professional or trade associations that relate to the issuance of credit cards to college students. “Other” refers to such agreements with other types of organizations.

ⁿ This report categorizes each agreement as “same,” “amended,” or “new.” “Same” refers to an agreement that was in effect during 2011, the terms of which were not amended or modified during 2012. “Amended” refers to an agreement that was in effect during 2011, the terms of which were amended or modified during 2012. “New” refers to an agreement that was not in effect prior to 2012.

effect on January 1, 2013; (7) the total number of open accounts under the agreement as of December 31, 2012; (8) the amount of payments made by the issuer to the institution or organization pursuant to the agreement during 2012; and (9) the number of new accounts opened pursuant to the agreement during 2012.

Appendix B to this report lists college credit card agreements that were in effect at some time during 2011 but were terminated by year-end 2011. This table also is organized alphabetically by the name of the institution or organization. (Agreements terminated in 2012 are included in Appendix A. These agreements are marked as no longer in effect on January 1, 2013)

In 2013, the Bureau received corrected information from INTRUST Bank and MIT Credit Union. Both issuers provided information for 2011 that had not been received by the Bureau in 2012. UMB Bank, N.A erroneously reported 3 entities that are not institutions of higher education for 2011 and Bureau thus removed them from 2011 reporting. The Bureau also reconciled its 2012 submissions with their associated agreements. Some institutions' names did not match their affinity agreements. These institutions' names were also corrected. Corrected information 2011 is included in Appendix C to this report. All comparisons to 2011 in this report reflect these corrections.

APPENDIX C:

Corrected information regarding college credit card agreements

In 2013, the Bureau received corrected information from INTRUST Bank and MIT Credit Union. Both issuers provided information for 2011 that had not been received by the Bureau in 2012. UMB Bank, N.A erroneously reported 3 entities that are not institutions of higher education for 2011 and Bureau thus removed them from 2011 reporting. The Bureau also reconciled its 2012 submissions with their associated agreements. Some institutions' names did not match their affinity agreements. These institutions' names were also corrected.
